President's Invitation to the Florida League of Cities 89th Annual Conference

Dear Friends:

The 89th Annual Conference of the Florida League of Cities will be held August 13-15, 2015, at the Orlando World Center Marriott Hotel in Orlando. This year's conference theme — Florida Cities: A Public Conversation — will explore, among many other areas of interest, the importance of public input and public access within cities. This year's theme will inspire you to find new ways to interact with the public. These three days will be packed full of educational opportunities!

The many workshops scheduled throughout the conference will provide information that we as city officials can use as we serve our cities and citizens. The general sessions with powerful keynote speakers will be thought-provoking. And, the timely information provided through the workshops and special participants from the state and national levels will be invaluable.

The schedule includes nationally recognized speakers. John F. Harris is co-founder and editor-in-chief of POLITICO, one of the country's most-visited news sites garnering national and international attention. Pete Peterson is executive director of the Davenport Institute for Public Engagement and Civic Leadership at Pepperdine's School of Public Policy, a self-described "think-and-do-tank." We are also excited to hear from NLC President Ralph Becker, of Salt Lake City, Utah.

This conference will also set the FLC legislative priorities for next year. With the 2016 legislative session starting in January, the League's five legislative policy committees will be finalizing their legislative priority issues at this conference. The League's membership will then vote on the 2016 Legislative Action Agenda at Saturday's Business Session on August 15. I encourage you to join us as cities set the stage for the next legislative session.

We are very excited about this year's conference and hope you'll plan to attend. Sharing information is vital to our growth and success as city officials for Florida's 411 municipalities. I look forward to seeing you in Orlando as we engage in A Public Conversation — and strengthen our cities through networking, idea exchange and continued educational opportunities.

Sincerely,

Matthew Surrency, FLC President
Mayor, City of Hawthorne

Along with teaching a class on the subject at Pepperdine, Peterson co-developed the seminar "Public Engagement: The Vital Leadership Skill," which has been offered to more than 1,000 public sector leaders in the last five years. He's also consulted on many participatory governance projects throughout California on issues ranging from budgets to water policy. Prior to his work in civic participation, Peterson worked in the printing/graphics industry for 15 years. Second General Session

Featuring the Years of Service recognitions, a special presentation by NLC President Ralph Becker and a keynote address by John Harris.

Salt Lake City Mayor Ralph Becker is the popular, two-term mayor of Utah's Capital City. He was elected in 2007 and re-elected in 2011 by a wide margin. A visible and highly regarded national leader among U.S. mayors, Becker currently serves as president of the National League of Cities and recently completed work as one of a small group of municipal leaders on the White House Task Force on Climate Preparedness and Resilience.

As mayor, he has been an advocate for expanding Salt Lake City's mobility and transportation options, sustainability, equality, social justice and enhancing the artistic and cultural life of the city. During the great recession (which began the year he took office), Becker led Salt Lake City government in addressing the largest budget gap in the city's history without raising taxes, reducing core city services or implementing significant layoffs.

Becker's administration has also built a reputation for its strong emphasis on social justice, human rights and achieved landmark legislation aimed at protecting the rights of the city's LGBT community.

During his time in office, Becker has led Salt Lake City in the passing of Utah's first non-discrimination ordinance and created the state's first mutual commitment registry, to recognize and extend benefits to domestic partners. In December 2013, when gay marriage briefly became legal in Utah, Becker enthusiastically officiated for 35 couples who were married on the first day. And, in October 2014, helped lead the celebration of the U.S. Supreme Court action that resulted in legalizing same-sex marriage in Utah for the foreseeable future.

Before serving as the chief executive of Salt Lake City, Becker was a member of the Utah House of Representatives, highlighted by five years as the House Democratic Leader. Becker is currently the president of the National League of Cities, where he advocates on behalf of more than 19,000 local governments. Away from work, Becker is an avid outdoorsman who seeks as much time in Utah's wildlands as he can find. He and his wife Kate can often be found backcountry skiing, hiking, camping and running rivers.

John Harris is the co-founder and editor-in-chief of POLITICO, the must-read newspaper and website for D.C. power-players. Since its launch in January 2007, POLITICO has become one of the country's most-trafficked news sites and has drawn widespread attention nationally and internationally for its efforts to create a new editorial and business model to sustain robust journalism in an era of radical change for the media industry.

Harris keeps a keen eye on the way technology is accelerating the spread of information, political cycles, and the public's expectations for change. He is passionate about journalism and news media, but realizes POLITICO cannot stay complacent as a physical paper or even a website. There is always the question of "what's next."

Harris ensures that POLITICO maintains journalistic integrity and the traditions of an old-guard newspaper while taking advantage of new media and technology streams. Well briefed in today's biggest issues, he was in the Telegraph's list of most influential Washington journalists and GQ's list of the most influential people in Washington. An inside source for political context, behind-the-scenes play by play, and the human drama that animates politics, Harris is steadfast in his goal of getting to the root of how Washington really works.
