

Sanders backs Gillum in governor’s race

By Jim Saunders
The News Service of Florida

TALLAHASSEE — Throughout his bid for Florida governor, Tallahassee Mayor Andrew Gillum has tried to appeal to the progressive voters who rallied behind Vermont Sen. Bernie Sanders’ insurgent presidential campaign in 2016.

Sanders apparently liked what he saw.

With the Democratic gubernatorial primary less than four weeks away, Sanders on Wednesday endorsed Gillum, pointing to Gillum’s stances on issues near and dear to left-leaning voters.

“As governor, Andrew Gillum will work to provide health care for all through a Medicare-for-All program, raise the minimum wage to a living wage, invest in sustainable energy, improve education, make sure the wealthiest corporations pay their fair share of taxes, and be welcoming to immigrants,” Sanders said in a statement released by the Gillum campaign. “Andrew has never backed down from a fight, including beating the NRA and standing up against xenophobic politicians. Andrew Gillum will set a new course for Florida — a governor who represents all the people and not just powerful special interests.”

The endorsement could give a late boost to Gillum, who has trailed his primary opponents in fundraising and in recent polls.

A Florida Atlantic

University poll released last week, for example, showed Gillum with support from 7 percent of Democratic voters, while a Mason-Dixon Polling & Strategy poll showed him at 10 percent.

Both polls, however, also showed large numbers of undecided Democratic voters.

The Gillum campaign quickly tried to seize on the Sanders endorsement, which came a day before the Democratic candidates will hold their final televised debate before the Aug. 28 primary.

“It’s an honor to have Senator Bernie Sanders’ endorsement in this campaign,” Gillum said in a statement. “He has been an unapologetic fighter for everyday working people standing up to the special interests. From Medicare-for-All, to a $15 minimum wage, his ideas and platform have become the Democratic Party’s north star on economic justice for those who need it most.”

While it is too early to gauge the effect of the endorsement, the Republican primary for governor has been remade after President Donald Trump endorsed Northeast Florida Congressman Ron DeSantis. State Agriculture Commissioner Adam Putnam was the front-runner for months in the GOP race, but DeSantis has surged into the lead after the Trump endorsement — which was highlighted during a raucous Trump rally Tuesday night in Tampa.

Trump’s backing puts new twist on Florida governor’s race

By Brendan Farrington
The Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — President Donald Trump’s Florida rally couldn’t have come at a better time for Republican U.S. Rep. Ron DeSantis, who may have locked up a primary victory as he seeks to become Florida’s next governor.

Thousands of people attended the Tuesday rally in Tampa as thousands of absentee ballots are arriving in mailboxes across Florida. Just the fact that Trump endorsed DeSantis earlier in the campaign helped him surge past Agriculture Commissioner Adam Putnam in Republican primary polls. Now with headlines and photos of DeSantis and Trump together on nearly every major newspaper’s front page and on television news around the state reinforces that support with a Republican base that loves the president.

“It would appear that Republican primary voters are willing to slavishly follow their master’s every dictamen,” said Tallahassee-based lobbyist and Republican political strategist Mac Stipanovich. “It’s really odd, hard to describe and actually frightening.”

Most political observers would have assumed Putnam was going to be the nominee when he entered the race 15 months ago. He had seemingly been building up to this campaign his entire adult life. He was elected to the state House in 1996 as a 22-year-old and four years later to the U.S. House, where he served five terms and became one of the most powerful House Republicans. He left Washington and was elected agriculture commissioner in 2010. This year, he has widespread establishment support and has spent more than $26 million between his campaign account and a political committee on the race. He’s made countless stops around the state, running a traditional grassroots campaign with a focus on Florida issues.

But seemingly overnight DeSantis has erased whatever advantage Putnam had with a campaign largely based on Fox News appearances, Trump’s backing and a focus on national issues. DeSantis, a former Navy officer, cast himself as a Washington outsider when he won his seat in 2012 and his goal was originally to remain in Washington — not run for governor. He ran for U.S. Senate in 2016, but dropped out of the race when Republican Sen. Marco Rubio decided to run for re-election. DeSantis didn’t enter the governor’s race until January and until recently held few in-state campaign events. Instead, he’s appeared on Fox News more than 100 times, usually defending Trump.

That loyalty helped sway the endorsement. Trump called DeSantis a great friend and a “tough, brilliant cookie.”

“I know him well. He’s a great, great guy. He’s going to be an incredible governor,” said Trump, who is a part-time Palm Beach resident. “I don’t do these endorsements easily. I don’t need to be here, but I happen to love this state ... Though it seems to have an impact.”

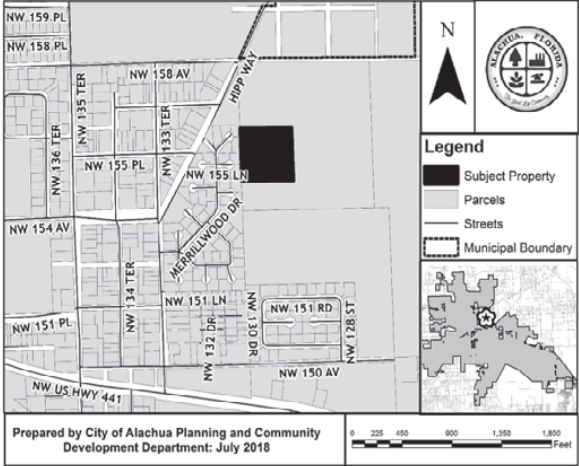

Trump then pointed out the recent Georgia Republican gubernatorial primary, where one-time presumptive front-runner Lt. Gov. Casey Cagle lost by 40 percentage points after Trump-endorsed Secretary of State Brian Kemp.

DeSantis’s Trump strategy also appears to be working in Florida.

Terry Castro, a 71-year-old retiree from Tampa, says she likes Putnam, but is supporting DeSantis.

Funds will be used to replace inadequately-sized water lines characterized as two or four inches with 6,600 linear feet of six- and eight-inch lines. At the same time, the project will include shutoff valves to reduce the chance of flooding if a water line is broken. The service area is west central High Springs. All of the water lines being replaced are interconnected. Fox said she had been in the neighborhood earlier in the day conducting a survey needed for the grant submission. "Residents are very excited about the new water lines," she said. Anyone interested in the exact streets that will be included in the project may contact High Springs City Hall or online and look at the CDBG Application Project Narrative included in the July 26 meeting packet. A second use for the grant funds is the renovation of the Walter Howard Neighborhood Park. It includes the addition of new play structures for 2 - 5-year-olds, a jungle gym, additional picnic facilities and additional swings in the park. The total grant amount to accomplish these improvements is $700,000. Three resolutions were unanimously approved authorizing submission of an application for the Small Cities CDBG, authorization for the City to use $50,000 as leverage for the same grant and a resolution authorizing implementation of the long-term and short-term objectives of the City's Community Development Plan. The grant application must be submitted no later than Aug. 13 according to Fox.

Walter Howard Park improvements for two to five-year-olds

This service is available Monday through Friday and from 6:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. from State Road 53 (Exit 258) to U.S. 41 (Exit 301) and from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. from U.S. 41 (Exit 301) to U.S. 301 (Exit 343). The Road Ranger program provides free highway support services during incidents to reduce delay and improve safety for motorists. Since the program's inception in 2000, the Road Rangers have made more than 4.3 million service assists, with more occurring daily. Road Rangers provide services to motorists by quickly clearing travel lanes of minor incidents and assisting motorists, which include providing a limited amount of fuel, assisting with tire changes, and other types of minor emergency repairs. Motorists can request Road Ranger service by dialing *347 (*FHP). In coordination with the Florida Highway Patrol, the RISC Lite vehicle will be able to remove disabled vehicles due to crashes, ranging in sizes from personal vehicles to box trucks, from the travel lanes. This is done in an effort to reduce secondary crashes on the interstate as well as provide quicker scene clearance and a faster return to typical travel flow. RISC Lite will complement the traditional RISC program, which is designed to remove larger vehicles, such as semi-trucks, from travel lanes. # # # Email editor@alachuatoday.com
