TALLAHASSEE
Gene Berkowitz, mayor at end of civil-rights era, dies

Eugene "Gene" Harold Berkowitz, who was a Tallahassee mayor and city commissioner at the end of the civil-rights era, died early Sunday. He was 93.

Berkowitz, a local business owner, served as mayor twice when the five elected city commissioners rotated through the position. He was mayor in 1968 and again in 1971.

He was the second of two Jewish men to ever serve in the role, according to the Institute of Southern Jewish Life. The first was Sam Wahnish in 1939. Berkowitz was a member of Temple Israel.

Berkowitz's time on the city commission also coincided with integration efforts in the capital.

During the summers of 1964-67, the city commission closed public swimming pools to avoid integrating them, according to Democrat archives. Berkowitz, who served 1967-73, was among the commissioners who voted to reopen city pools in 1968 after Martin Luther King Jr. was assassinated.

BOYNTON BEACH
Teen arrested for threatening violence
at grocery

Authorities took a 14-year-old boy into custody late Monday after the teen posted threats on social media that he would commit a mass shooting at a supermarket.

The Boynton Beach Police Department said they learned of the threat Monday afternoon after being contacted by an employee of Publix Super Markets. The post was made on the chain's corporate Instagram page.

In his post, the teen wrote that he was "gonna commit a mass shooting" at the Publix store in Boynton Beach.

Authorities were able to track down the owner of the account that appeared to have originated the post. When they arrived at the boy's home, the teenager admitted to making the post but told investigators that he meant it as a joke.

Authorities arrest man in stabbing death of father

Authorities arrested a man on murder charges late Monday after fatally stabbing his father multiple times during a struggle.

Hollywood police were responding to a domestic violence call when they spotted the suspect fleeing the scene in a red Camaro.

A high-speed chase ensued along the Florida Turnpike through Broward and Miami-Dade counties, ending when the suspect's vehicle spun out of control.

The suspect, identified by police as 24-year-old Jamal Hall, was arrested without further incident. He was taken to Broward County's main jail, where he was booked on a charge of first-degree murder.

The suspect's father, Malik Ali Hall, 49, was stabbed multiple times, police said. Emergency crews rendered aid, but he died at the scene.

A motive for the slaying was not immediately known, police said.

White nationalist who ran for Senate arrested in Fla.

MELBOURNE — A white nationalist who ran for the U.S. Senate in Florida and was a featured speaker during the 2017 "Unite the Right" rally in Charlottesville, Virginia, was arrested on charges of kidnapping, domestic violence and possession of a firearm during a crime of violence.

Augustus Sol Invictus, 36, was arrested Monday at a Florida mall by Brevard County Sheriff's deputies on a warrant issued out of South Carolina, the Miami Herald reported. Jail records described him as an "out of state fugitive."

The Herald noted that news of the arrest was first reported on Twitter by the journalist Nick Martin, who focuses on covering "hate and extremism" in the U.S.

Invictus, an Orlando-area attorney, has called for violent uprisings. During his 2016 Senate bid to unseat U.S. Sen. Marco Rubio, he got widespread attention for claiming that he killed a goat and drank its blood as part of a pagan ritual. He failed, however, to win the nomination from Florida's Libertarian Party to challenge Rubio.

White nationalist Richard Spencer, who organized the deadly Charlottesville rally that refocused attention on the country's frayed race relations, had credited Invictus with drafting the core tenets behind the rally.

Jail records show that Invictus is being held without bond and is to appear before a judge on Jan. 15.

Invictus was taken into custody Monday afternoon by deputies from the Brevard County Sheriff's fugitive unit, public information officer Tod Goodyear said Wednesday.

Humble Wood Fire's counter service space at 405 SW Fourth Ave. is planning to open by fall 2020, but until then, customers can get a taste of classic and unique pizza and bagel flavors at their mobile location, set up in the food park weekly.

Pizzas range from classic Margherita, which has a tomato sauce base topped with mozzarella and basil, to the exotic Coconut Curry, which has a coconut curry sauce base topped with Yukon potatoes, marinated tempeh or chicken, red onion, mozzarella and cilantro.

Owner Brett Ader's favorite is the Funghi, which has a base of cashew alfredo sauce and is topped with thyme, shiitake mushroom "bacon," crimini mushrooms and mozzarella.

"The shiitake mushrooms are prepared in a way that is similar to bacon, and they get all crispy," said Ader, who is a vegetarian.

Many pies have vegetarian tempeh available as their protein.

farming roots.

"I was getting burned out from working all the long hours, every holiday," he said.

Two years ago, he founded Fehrenbacher's Artisan Sausage, 411 SW Fourth Ave., where he pulls from his culinary heritage, hunting and farming with his family and his professional experience to create classic and unique sausage flavors and dishes.

"What makes ours unique is what we don't put in it," he said.

Rather than using preservatives and other additives, the shop uses as few ingredients in its products as possible.

Ferhenbacher's favorite sausage contains just the meat (a pork sausage in this case) and three spices: salt, pepper and paprika.

Some of the shop's more exotic flavors include a Szechuan sausage that contains Szechuan peppercorns and gochujang, a Korean chili paste; and a Kimchi sausage, named for the Korean side dish of fermented salted vegetables.

"We try to keep some eclectic things on the menu," Fehrenbacher said.

All sausage is also hand-cranked through a manual grinder. Last year, Fehrenbacher said his team cranked 12,000 pounds of sausage at the shop.

Fehrenbacher's features about six or seven choices of sausage on the menu at any given time, and has featured more than 70 varieties total. A menu of sandwiches and meat boards rotates with the sausages. Beer and wine are available.

Fehrenbacher's Artisan Sausage is open for lunch and dinner Tuesday-Friday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

BakerBaker

Amanda Bowers started baking her way through a cookbook to pass time several years ago, and she hasn't stopped since.

"People told me I have a knack for it," she said. "It's just something I really love."

She folds and kneads and presses dough to create the cookies, breads, muffins, scones and more she offers to her wholesale partners at BakerBaker, 407 SW Fourth Ave.

Pastry-seeking Gainesville residents can find Bowers' goods at Opus Coffee locations, including new items that will be special to the Airstream.

Bowers bakes 1,000 pastries daily for Opus.

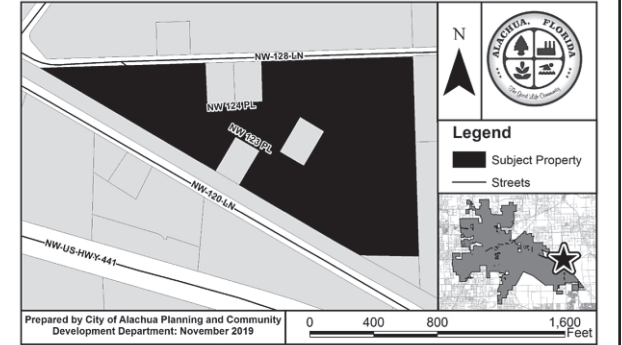

Her favorite good to make is croissants because they require the most skill and finesse. One of the keys to good croissants, Bowers said, is high-quality butter.

Bowers' flaky croissants take a total of four days to make from start to finish, she said, because of the time the dough needs to rest between steps.

"You have to be patient," she said.
